

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In order to prevent illegal data tampering or leakage of information caused by devices connected to a system such as a conference system and save time
5 and trouble in setting functional restrictions separately from an application, an access point uses authentication information for authenticating electronic devices operated by participants who participate in a conference also as the information
10 to decide functional restrictions on the electronic devices during the conference.